

Apprentice of the Year

Lewis Civil Engineering is delighted to announce that our Apprentice, Nathan Cowell has been awarded "South Wales Apprentice of the Year" at the 2015 'Stars of the Future' Plant Mechanic Apprentice Awards which took place on Thursday 4th June at Plantworx Construction Equipment Exhibition at Bruntingthorpe Aerodrome, Leicestershire.

The Stars of the Future competition is an annual award scheme, now in its 3rd year, devised by the CPA to recognise talented youngsters on plant mechanic apprentice schemes in colleges across the UK.

There are separate prizes for Level Two and Level Three trainee mechanics, at both regional and national level. The awards recognise and reward outstanding apprentices who bring ability and commitment to their learning and their work, and who also who possess additional capabilities that mark them out not only as being the foundations of the future, but also potential leaders of the industry.

In the inaugural competition in 2013 there were 489 entries – in 2014 there were 592 entries and for 2015 there were a staggering 1000 students participating!

Well Done Nathan!
